New Deal Principles to Stick, Says LaGuardia

NEW YORK — No matter how the political tide turns next year and no matter who is elected president, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York believes that the fundamental objectives of the New Deal have been achieved and that the nation is not going to backslide away from them.

Bruner, Murray to Play for Title at 9 p. m. Monday

Undeclared Teams Clash for District Softball Honors

TO PLAY 3 GAMES
Runners-Up Position to Be Determined in Third Contest

Bruner-Murray Handle company softball team of Hope meets Murray Auto Service of Prescott at 9 o'clock Monday night for the championship of Southwest Arkansas.

Both teams are undefeated in tournament play, Bruner having won over Nashville and East Funeral Home, Texarkana.

Murray defeated the Soil Erosion team of Hope and then advanced to the finals by a forfeit over the 282 Service team of Prescott.

Three Games Monday
The opening game Monday night at 8 o'clock finds Soil Erosion opposing East Funeral Home. Each team has lost one game. The winner will qualify for the runner-up position, gaining the right to meet the loser of the Bruner-Murray game in the third contest Monday night.

The second round of the tournament here Saturday night resulted in a series of forfeitures.

Murray Auto Service won over 282 Service team by a forfeit. Only six members of the 282 teams showed up.

East Funeral Home won over Nashville by a forfeit when Nashville failed to show up. Nashville had been defeated previously.

Soil Erosion team won over 282 Service team of Prescott when the latter team failed to show up.

Inter-District Play
The champion and runner-up of this district will play the champion and runner-up of the Eldorado district here Tuesday night.

The teams then moved to Eldorado for two games there Thursday night. The winner of this series will be eligible to compete in the state tournament at Little Rock the latter part of August.

Admission for the three games here Monday night will be 10 and 25 cents. Softball Commissioner Brasher said he expected a big crowd.

Hope Man Is One of 16 New Patrolmen of State Force

Appointment of 16 new State Police Department patrolmen, increasing the department's personnel to 71 and the number of its uniformed officers to 66, was announced today by the week-end by Supt. A. G. Albright.

A three-week training school for the new officers will open at Camp Joseph T. Robinson Monday. This will be followed by a two-week re-training school for veteran officers. The schools will be conducted in co-operation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The 1939 regular legislative session increased the State Police appropriation to provide for 15 additional patrolmen. The 16th appointment was to fill a vacancy. The appointees are:

Arthur Wilbur Barker, Marianna, Clyde H. Barker, Keiser, Mississippi county.

Allan R. Templeton, Arkansas City, Desha county.

John Howell, Nashville.

Raymond Mason, Newport.

Albert J. Brinker, El Dorado.

Omar A. Williams, Hope.

Damon Wilson, Fort Smith.

Dallas Long, Augusta.

A. D. Nisler, Plumerville, Conway county.

Floyd A. Short, Cherry Valley, Cross Frank McGibbons, Monticello.

Charles Richardson, Prescott.

Meek Welborn, Texarkana.

Charlie Boyd, Lewisville, Lafayette county.

Roland Humble, Mount Ida.

Guess These Words
To work this puzzle, first guess the words described, then combine the words as syllables, to form another word. Example: Q. My first is an ocean; birdies make my second I am a race horse; A. Seabiscuit. Sea plus biscuit! Uow try your hand at these four:

1. My first is found in a garden; my second runs an auto; my third is you and I. I am a mythical horse.

2. My first is a tree; my second a note in the scale; there's no place like my third; my fourth is a vowel. I am a state.

3. My first is a farm yard animal; my second a month in spring; my third a boy's name; my fourth is not off. I am a recent motion picture.

4. You sit on my first and require my second when in trouble. I am an enigma.

Mangled Body of Youth Discovered on Railroad Here

Body of J. C. Morgan, 22, Found Half Mile West of Hope

NO INQUEST IS HELD

Officers Believe Youth Fell From Freight Train

A father, who Sunday heard reports of a fatal accident on the Missouri Pacific line west of Hope, went to Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Home and identified the body as that of his son, John Clayton Morgan, 22.

The body, badly mangled, was found shortly after noon Sunday about half a mile west of the Missouri Pacific depot. The discovery was made by a Missouri Pacific engineer.

Apparently young Morgan, who came to Hope with his father, M. L. Morgan, from Harrisburg, about six months ago, had met death late Saturday night or early Sunday.

Sheriff C. E. Baker and Police Chief Sweeney Copeland investigated a theory that young Morgan may have met foul play but later discounted the theory when they were unable to find any indication of murder.

Sheriff Baker was of the opinion that Morgan had been to Texarkana and was returning to Hope. He said Morgan had a pass on the Missouri Pacific and that the absence of it from the victim's clothing might indicate that he had lost it and caught a freight train back to Hope.

The sheriff said that a knife, comb and eight cents were found in Morgan's clothing.

Coroner J. H. Weaver said he had made an investigation of the death and could find nothing that would point to foul play. The coroner said no inquest would be held.

The body left Hope Sunday night for Harrisburg where funeral services were to be held either Monday or Tuesday.

It was understood here that the victim's mother and other relatives lived at Harrisburg.

Young Morgan and his father came to Hope about six months ago. The elder Morgan is assistant road master of the Missouri Pacific lines. The son worked under his father.

Willard McDowell Hurt in Accident

Sustains Broken Back and Ankle in Logging Mishap

Willard McDowell, about 25, sustained a broken back and ankle in a logging accident Saturday at the Herndon Sawmill company plant at Patmos.

He will be incapacitated for a period of three to six months, Dr. L. M. Lyle, his physician, reported.

X-ray photographs made at the office of Dr. Lyle and Dr. Young showed that bones attached to the spinal column were broken. The photographs also revealed the fractured ankle.

Mr. McDowell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McDowell of the Spring Hill community, was removed to the home of Roy Craine, 1322 South Main street.

It was reported from the Craine residence that Mr. McDowell was unloading logs from a truck when one of the logs bounced, striking him on the back and ankle.

1st Methodist to See Christ Film

Sacred Moving Picture to Be Shown Here Wednesday, Thursday

The people of Hope and vicinity are invited to First Methodist church, on Wednesday and Thursday nights, August 23 and 24, at 8 p. m., to see the new and beautiful motion picture film of the "LIFE OF CHRIST" and the "PASSION PLAY," depicting the story of Jesus, from the nativity to the ascension, which is based upon, and patterned after the world-famous Freiburg and Oberammergau "Passion Plays" of Europe, and which was actually filmed in Europe, the Holy Land, and Egypt, at a tremendous cost. It is being brought here by the National Bureau for Religious and Educational Films.

A complete and appropriate musical score will be played throughout the entire film, on special sound equipment, reproducing some of the world's choicest orchestral, organ, and choral music by famous composers, blending in with the magnificent scenes, which portray, in authentic and historic fashion, the Life, Crucifixion, and Resurrection of Jesus. The film was produced in Europe, Palestine and Egypt, and has won the profound admiration and approval of more than one thousand of the largest churches in the United States and Canada, having been exhibited to more than one million people during the past two years, many times to overflowing audiences.

A spiritual and reverent atmosphere is established and maintained throughout the entire program and leaves the audience in an meditative, prayerful, and heart-searching mood, provoking thought concerning the reality of the Christian promises in their daily lives.

The film is one of unusual beauty, and has been highly praised wherever it has been shown. The public is invited, and tickets are not required to gain admission. A free-will offering will be taken to assist in defraying expenses.

Under the agreement, announced over the Soviet radio, Germany will grant Russia a credit of 200,000,000 marks (about $80,000,000) for seven years at five per cent interest for purchases of German goods in the next two years. It also provides for sale by the U. S. S. R. to Germany within two years of goods valued at $72,000,000.

This agreement possibly is a primary cause of delay in the military negotiations of Britain, France and Russia. It came as a surprise in foreign diplomatic circles although it was known negotiations were under way. Its effect on the staff talks was unpredictable immediately but some observers believed it marked an effective barrier to any Soviet alliance with Britain and France.

Reports of a snag in negotiations between the Soviets and the British-French missions heightened when for the third successive day representatives of the three nations failed to confer.

Sources close to the visitors said they merely wanted to rest after an arduous week. However, they declined to discuss an official news communiqué, issued Saturday stating "real discordance" exists, presumably over the position of Finland and the Baltic states in event of war.

The surprise move interrupted a hearing by Chancellor W. A. Speer on the commission's petition for a court order to force the firm to abide by the general shutdown decree which went into effect on all Arkansas-controlled fields Thursday.

The commission requested the order after Lion obtained an injunction preventing state police from enforcing the shutdown.

Match Germans With Reinforcements, as Europe Tensely Waits

WARSAW, Poland.—(P)—The British embassy circulated its nationals in Warsaw in general terms advising them to leave Warsaw as soon as possible "in view of the considerable danger of a rupture in Polish-German relations," a reliable informant said Monday.

Rome, Italy.—(P)—Premier Mussolini refrained Monday from giving any indication that he would intervene with a plan to avert possible war over the German demands for Danzig.

Italy "Hands Off"

LONDON, Eng.—(P)—A decision to hold a full British cabinet session Tuesday coincident with the French cabinet meeting indicated Monday that an important joint action impended in the grave European meeting.

To suggestions that Italy "save peace" by intervention in the German-Polish dispute, well-informed Italians answered that she would follow the policy of the Rome-Berlin axis.

French Cabinet Meet
PARIS, France.—(P)—Premier Daladier, after a long talk Monday with British War Minister Leslie Hore, called a meeting of the French cabinet for 5 p. m. Tuesday.

The meeting undoubtedly will consider King Leopold's call for a conference Wednesday to discuss a peace plea to the larger powers, but informed French sources emphasized that "France is in no mood to make Brussels another Munich."

Warsaw, Poland.—(P)—Poland was said Monday to have sent troop reinforcements toward her frontiers facing Germany and Slovakia as a general precaution against similar increases reported to have been made by Germany.

Belgium Rallies Small Ones
BRUSSELS, Belgium.—(P)—The government of 37-year-old King Leopold of Belgium, often hailed as potential mediator of Europe's troubles, Monday suddenly invited the ministers of six small powers to rush here by airplane and join Belgium in a plea to the larger nations of the old world.

The conference will meet not later than Wednesday.

The nations invited were: The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Finland.

It was understood here that all had accepted.

German-Russia Treaty
MOSCOW, Russia.—(P)—Announcement here Sunday that Germany and Soviet Russia had signed a long term trade and credit agreement threw a bombshell in the midst of military staff talks with France and Great Britain.

Shushan Indicted in Louisiana Probe

Four Others Held With Him for Alleged 1/2 Million Graft

NEW ORLEANS.—(P)—Abraham L. Shushan, powerful Louisiana politician and former close associate of Huey Long, was indicted Monday by a federal grand jury here along with four other persons on charges of using the mails to defraud in a questioned New Orleans levee board refunding transaction which he allegedly received $132,740.

Named with the former president of the levee board were Robert Newman and Marvin Harris, Jr. members of the prominent investment firm of Newman, Harris & Co.; Herbert Waggoner, member of the levee board at the time of the transaction; and Henry Miller, an accountant, all of who allegedly shared in the $132,740 fee paid in the refunding.

Brooks Hays Is to Resign, Is Report

Change Impending in National Committee Post, Newspaper Hears

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Arkansas Democrat said Monday it had learned from sources believed to be reliable that the resignation of Brooks Hays as Democratic national committee man for Arkansas is expected to be announced within the next few days.

Hays could not be reached for comment.

All of this is based on the advantage given the city in low gas rates for use in the electric generating plant. It follows that Hope is getting an undue preference over other cities and towns in Arkansas not having such a rate advantage.

The Louisiana-Nevada contracts with Hope and Okay interests provide a rate of 10c per thousand cubic feet.

The public has had no relief from high gas rates of the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Company for over 20 years," they asserted. "All of the profits have gone to the stockholders and not to the people of Arkansas. Now is the time for this commission to swing the door the other way and let the people of southwest Arkansas have a chance to be benefitted from cheap gas at our very back door."

Cement Co. Is Backer

A New World Waits to Be Conquered

Every once in a while you hear a ridiculous, croaking old voice saying, "Everything has been done. There are no more frontiers. We are doomed to stagnation and death."

It is bitterly untrue. Even if it were true in the physical sense of no more lands to conquer, no more worlds to discover, no more prairies to break to the plow, it could never be true in the realm of economics, or in the world of the spirit. For as our fathers broke the wilderness, so we must break the problem of starvation amidst abundance, of poverty amidst riches, of men without work in the midst of a world that has so much work to do.

But even on the physical side, it is not quite true. There is a land with "snow peaks of unsurpassed grandeur, towering from 17,000 to 20,000 feet high; a chain of great lakes, some of them still unnamed; a new grand canyon, and untold wealth of gold and other minerals."

Does it sound like some dream-like Eldorado? It is not. It is a description of the country surveyed recently by American members of the International Highway Board in planning for the proposed Alaska-Yukon highway. Whichever of several proposed routes is finally adopted, this highway will one day link the Pacific Northwest with Alaska by way of British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

Representative Warren G. Magnuson, one of the American members of the highway board, summoned up the advantages of the road: "It would form a land life-line between the United States and Alaska, draw auto tourists, open up vast mineral resources now unexploited, prove of military value, and open up a virtually new world."

Negotiations are now going on with Canada to find a formula for engineering and constructing the road which will be satisfactory to both countries. Here is a project which will mutually benefit both, and which can be planned and carried out in the closest co-operation, in welcome contrast to a world which is all glower and grab.

Further, this road will connect with the Pan-American highway, and form an integral part of it, bringing nearer the day when an automobile can travel in peace and safety from Fairbanks to Buenos Aires.

It would be costly. But even the top figure of $22,000,000 is far less than the cost of a single cruiser. It seems cheap as the price of opening up a splendid, beautiful new world.

Persons Allergic to Insect Bites Trace Sensitivity to Proteins

Since science has learned that human beings may be sensitive to all sorts of proteins, we have found that some people react much more than others to insect bites. We know that there is such sensitivity and that sometimes the response to the bite of a fly or the sting of a bee or wasp is far more serious in some people than in others.

Not long ago a woman was bitten by a deer fly while in the woods in upstate New York state. Following these bites, she became subject to hives which appeared all over her body. The condition is called urticaria. Insect bites have been known to cause prolonged urticaria in some people. Even deaths have been reported from this cause.

The reactions have occurred not only after the bite of deer flies, and the stings of bees and wasps, but also after the bites of mosquitoes, fleas, bedbugs, and sand flies.

Experts in allergy, or in the treatment of sensitivity, have endeavored to desensitize patients to such bites by injecting them with extracts of the insects concerned. These extracts have been made of bee venom, of body and six others improved.

People may be sensitive to the sting of one insect, but not to that of others in the same family. An instance is reported in which a man was stung by a hornet when he was 12 years old and was unconscious for an hour. When he was 63 years old he was stung by a yellow-jacket and was unconscious for 20 minutes. At the age of 63 he was stung by a yellow-jacket, was unconscious for more than two hours, and was quite sick for several weeks thereafter. In this case it was found that the man was sensitive to the hornet and yellow jacket, but not to the honey bee or the bumble bee, since the stings of these insects did not affect him in any way.

People who respond with extraordinary manifestations after the sting of insects might well determine whether or not they are especially sensitive. Such tests may be made by physicians who specialize in making a study of sensitivity to various protein substances.

We dream of roses we shall find
Some day by some fair garden wall
We dream of paths that some day must Fulfill the quest, the wander-
Just
That slumbers in us all.
A rose that grows without a thorn
We dream of finding tomorrow
Then Memory like a restless ghost
Goes back to roses climbing through
A trellis by a garden door
Which we may enter nevermore.
When the velvet lay the dew,
"Ah, yes, the perfect rose," we say,
"Grew in that garden yesterday!"
And so I wonder when, perhaps,
Some one, sometimes, will stop to greet
The wondrous beauty of the rose
Which in complete perfection grows
This moment at his feet!
Heaven is his who every hour
Shall find and pluck a perfect flower.

Louisiana 'Hot Oil' Witness Suicide

Dr. J. A. Shaw, Head of Minerals Division, Shoots Himself

NEW ORLEANS. (AP)—Dr. James A. Shaw, 64, director of the Minerals Division of the Louisiana Conservation Department, died in the operating room at Baptist hospital of a bullet wound inflicted at his home Sunday.

Dr. C. G. Green, Orleans parish coroner, after an autopsy classified the death as a suicide.

Dr. Shaw, who was to have been an important witness in the forthcoming federal trial of former Governor Leche and Seymour Weiss, hotel man, on "hot oil" conspiracy charges, was found wounded mortally in the bathroom of his home by his at 7 p.m.

Shaw was the central government witness in the federal hearing at Dallas, Texas, last week in which the government sought removal of Freeman W. Burford, wealthy oil man, indicted jointly with Leche and Weiss in alleged conspiracy to violate the Connally "hot oil" act.

Shaw testified he had signed the order whereby excess oil was taken from wells in the Redfish field in north Louisiana "to hold his job." He said he had been in the habit of signing anything put before him in such transactions.

Judge T. W. Davidson of Dallas who dismissed Burford from custody, holding there was no reasonable probability of a case against him, criticized several Shaw and Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans, former conservation commissioner, and Shaw's superior, who the judge said were as guilty as any man indicted in the Weiss-Leche charges.

"Leche and Weiss could not have pulled down this money but for Shaw and Maestri. They are just as guilty in the opinion of this court as any man indicted. One still holds his job, and the other has in a sense been promoted."

County Library to Be Discussed Here

State Librarian Rawlinson to Be Here at 2 p. m. Wednesday

Plans for a county-wide public library service will be made at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, August 23 at Hope city hall when Alfred Rawlinson, state librarian, arrived here for conference with local officials.

In a letter to Mrs. Helen Northcutt of the Hope Public Library Mr. Rawlinson wrote:

"I expect to arrive in Hope around 1:30 on the 23d and would suggest around 2 p. m. as a possible time for the meeting."

"Since I plan to discuss the post-county-wide library service it would be helpful if as many as possible of the following individuals could be present:

"County judge, mayor, state senator, county representatives, library board members, home demonstration agent, county agent, county examiner, and representatives of various organizations interested in betterment of rural life."

SERIAL STORY

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1939, HEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Police, investigating the murder in Christine's booth, detain her for questioning. The victim had been dragged, killed with a dagger. Bill identifies the murdered woman as Mrs. Emma Talbert, Christine's cousin.

CHAPTER VII

FOR a moment Christine hardly heard what was being said. For that moment she stood, isolated by shock, torn by a pang of affection she had never before known she felt for the formally kind, but painfully repressed woman she remembered as Cousin Emma, but had never really known.

Oh, Cousin Emma she thought. I don't believe you were ever very happy. . . . I might have been much nicer to you.

When she came back to her surroundings, the inspector was asking the doorman, "Have you noticed anything unusual around here in the last two hours?"

"Well"—the doorman hesitated—"about half after 11 I did see this young lady"—regrettably he indicated Christine—"come along and stop right here; then her boy friend comes running up those stairs from the beach, and they hurry off together. . . . But first, she takes him under the Twentieth Century lights and—kind of looks him over."

Christine flinched as she thought of that moment while she and Bill stood there, laughing and talking—with Cousin Emma perhaps already lying there—like that—a few feet away.

"Looks him over?" the inspector snapped. "What do you mean?"

"I know what he means," the waitress stopped snapping her gum long enough to put in. "I seen them, too; and he was dripping wet."

Why, Christine remembered with an unpleasant start, Bill had been wet. . . . He had said—

"Say—lookit! The newsboy, who had been staring at Bill, pointed a grimy forefinger. "I see him before all right. I sold all my tomorrow morning's papers by 10:30; and I was out along the boardwalk. And I seen him in a parked car. He was leanin' out, as if he was waitin' for something."

The inspector turned to Bill. "What's your name?" he demanded.

"William Yardley,"

"Oh, yes—run the riding school, don't you? . . . And you say you knew Mrs. Talbert?"

"I did."

The inspector took a small dark object from his pocket.

"Recognize this?" he asked. "I ought to," Bill said after a brief inspection. "It's my key holder."

THE inspector surveyed him for a moment; then he coolly reclaimed the keys and said, "It was found on the beach near a row-boat that hadn't any business to be where it was. That boat may have some connection with Mrs. Talbert's death."

"I saw that boat. I had a little run-in with a fellow right about there earlier in the evening."

"You'd better explain."

"Nothing to explain," Bill looked as if he could have kicked himself for speaking. "I was doing my best to pin his ears back, but he showed more speed than I looked for."

"Who was this man?"

"If you don't mind," Bill said pleasantly, "we won't go into that any further at present. . . . However, here he comes now. Perhaps he'll want to tell you all about it—but I don't think so."

Two uniformed men pushed into the booth, holding between them a disreputable object in rubber wading boots. Aside from the boots, he wore a soiled pair of flannel trousers, a tattered shirt, and a greasy hat.

"Here's that beachcomber we found down by the boat, Inspector," one of the men said. "He made a break for it, and we had to chase him half way to Key West."

Christine looked at the man with interest. She had seen several men in rubber boots, wading about in the backwash of low tide that morning, poking with long sticks in the sand—occasionally stooping to pick something up and examine it. When she had asked Mr. Wilmet if they were fishing, he had replied, "Well—in a way. They're beachcombers. Often they find coins, and sometimes even jewelry."

Evidently Bill had not confined his efforts to the pinning back of ears. One of the man's eyes was almost closed. . . . Yet Christine looked at him in unbelieving recognition, and found him staring at her with a kind of dismayed pleading.

The inspector glanced sharply from one to the other of them and demanded, "Ever seen this man before, Miss?"

Christine hesitated. . . . Of course it couldn't be—yet it was. In spite of his generally disreputable appearance, the man in boots was unmistakably Cousin Emma's irrepressible butler, Jasper. . . . She put out a hand to steady herself against the wall of the booth.

AT the point where her hand rested, the concrete was badly cracked. A fragment moved under her fingers. . . . At least, she took it for a fragment of the wall until she realized that it was smooth as silver that had just been polished.

Afterwards, she remembered thinking that—neatly as it was fitted into the crevice between the blocks of concrete, no one could have hoped to hide a dagger there for long—even such a slender one.

She heard herself saying in a small, thin voice, "I—think I've found something, Inspector."

"Then at sight of the stain on the blade, she cried out and flung the weapon clattering to the floor. A man gathered it up in a clean handkerchief as tenderly as if it had been a new-born babe."

"I'll look this over, Chief," he said. "Although I doubt if there are any finger-prints left."

"Here!" he mine," Christine said faintly.

The inspector treated her to a brief, sardonic grin.

"Why, so there will!" he agreed. "So it was just as easy as that."

"May you boys had better have another look around before this young lady finds the murderer under a piece of seaweed, with a signed confession under his arm neatly tied up in pink ribbon."

He swung from his subordinates to the others.

"I think," he shot at them, "that we'll run over to my office to finish this session—you and you and you and you, I mean."

He indicated Christine, Bill, Mr. Wilmet, and the disreputable object who couldn't believably be Cousin Emma's immaculate Jasper, and yet who was. "The rest of you leave your addresses."

"Do you mean?" Bill asked, as the dismissed witnesses struggled disappointedly away, "that we're under arrest?"

"Not yet. When I arrest people for murder," the inspector said dryly, "they stay arrested."

He looked it, Christine thought, examining him for the first time.

He was an erect man of early middle age, with a direct, non-committal blue gaze, and a jetty incisive voice. He had the appearance of one who might be impersonally fair so long as he knew that you were honest with him, but implacable to any whom he suspected of lying.

And already she had deceived him by her tacit acquiescence to the name by which Mr. Wilmet had introduced her. It was going to be difficult to explain that under those uncompromising eyes.

I must tell him who I really am at once, Christine thought. Perhaps I can talk to him alone.

But talking to Inspector Parsons alone did not prove to be easy.

Errol Flynn Daring Gunfighter in Epic Western, 'Dodge City'

The sprawling turbulent, sudden-death mien of the toughest, roughest town in the cattle country of the 1870s is the background against which Errol Flynn projects his virile, adventurous personality in "Dodge City," the Warner Bros. Technicolor production which starts Tuesday at the Rialto theater.

Dealing with the most turbulent era of the old west, it is a production of a scope and audacity that may well make it remembered as a milestone in motion picture history.

Making the unmistakably British Errol Flynn its hero may seem a novelty to the casual film-goer but it will require no stretching of credibility on the part of those who are steeped in the history of the period and the region which are covered in "Dodge City." For there were a number of adventurous young Britons who became well-known figures in the pioneer days of the west and its easy to believe that such a fellow as Flynn is in actuality could well have been one of them.

With this blessing of historical authenticity, Flynn makes an ideal figure as a venturesome young Irish soldier of fortune who has become a cowboy in Texas after having fought in the army of the Confederacy during the Civil War. The story of the picture picks him up when he has become the trail boss of an outfit driving a huge herd of Texas longhorns steers up along the Chisholm Trail to Dodge City, the little town in southwestern Kansas that had become the largest cattle shipping center in the west after the Santa Fe Railway had been extended to what had merely been a drinking and carousing center for the soldiers from nearby military post, Fort Dodge.

In the screen play written by Robert Buckner, events are contrived to get Flynn to accept the post of sheriff of the wicked town where the six-shooter was the final arbiter of all arguments. He sets about cleaning up the town, and this he finally succeeds in doing.

There are many impressive and hair-raising scenes in the production, but those that the spectator is most likely to remember longest are a cattle stampede in the early part of the picture, a rousing saloon brawl in which more than 100 men make a veritable shambles of the place, and a climactic pistol battle in a railway mail car which is given a sudden and horrible twist when the car bursts into flames.

Flynn, of course, dominates the action of the piece throughout, but he is given valiant assistance by a very expert ensemble of supporting players. Notable among them are Olivia De Havilland, as a pioneer newspaper girl who falls in love with the sheriff and helps him in his campaign to clean up the town; Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale and others.

All that really need be said about the direction is that it was handled by Michael Curtiz, for he has long since established himself as the best director in Hollywood for large-scale pictures.

Young Hitch-Hiker Robs W. T. Stephens

Bond Salesman Loses Auto and Is Threatened With Death

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Bond Salesman W. T. Stephens, 36, reported to county officers Sunday night a young hitch-hiker he picked up two miles south of here had robbed him of several dollars, stolen his automobile and threatened him with death.

He was on route to Prattville, Grant county, to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stephens, when he gave the young thumb-rider a lift.

Stephens said 15 miles out, the young man struck a gun in his ribs and informed him he was going to kill him, take his car, and money.

The salesman said that he was forced out of the car and then the youth told him to turn around and start running so that he could shoot him in the back. This he refused to do, he related, moving slowly backward until he was able to duck behind a tree and run through a woods and escape.

State, county and city officers were looking for the car, a 1936 model gray Buick coupe and the youth, described as wearing a green coat and light green pants.

one at Okay, Ark., had acquired a half-interest in the Louisiana-Nevada company.

"This development simply proves that the project as originally conceived is purely a private piece of business utterly lacking in its public aspects," the brief said.

The Arkansas-Louisiana company said it had at all times taken the position that the prime object of regulation was to "secure the lowest rates possible for domestic consumers, and that industrial rates should be held to as high a level as possible so long as industries are enabled to profitably operate and compete with industries in the same line of business elsewhere."

Walker and Fitzhugh said the cement company had made a "direct threat" that if the permit were denied a private gas line would be built connecting the cement works with the Cotton Valley (La.) gas field.

"This clearly constitutes an attempt to intimidate the department utilities Commission and to put pressure on the department to secure the granting of the certificate," they said.

the Nazis at a time of serious international tension.

"The Nazis undoubtedly will import on a much larger scale than ever before vital Russian raw materials including manganese and other ores, rubber, gasoline and oil, sulphur and chemicals. Russia will use the German credits to buy machinery for making tools and spare parts."

German political and economic quarters hailed the treaty as the signal for a "sharp upward turn" in trade relations between the two countries. The two countries in recent years have permitted their trade volume gradually to slip until last year it was only $49,000,000.

The treaty was cited as an "example" that Germany as a consequence of its trade policy pursues as intensive an economic co-operation as possible with any other state ready to do so."

The negotiations were brought to a successful conclusion by Dr. K. Schunberg, the German Foreign Office, and E. Bonny, of the Soviet trade delegation in Germany, after two failures. One of the principal stumbling blocks always had been the amount of credit Germany should grant the Soviet.

The official whom Sherman named was Baron Edgar von Peckelsheim, consul general at New Orleans.

"The Baron said," Sherman testified, "that this was a practice they followed to encourage the study of German in American colleges."
